■ COUNCIL: Durley says

'Leave well enough alone'

WAYNE CAMPBELL PelhamNFWS

Town council threw cold water on a Niagara Region plan for a conceptual review of water and wastewater services. Reponding to the region's terms of reference for the review, town councillors supported its staff's 10 comments against it.

They resent the implication of centralized control. The terms of reference suggest that is the purpose of the review. staff said.

PELHAM — During the advance poll for the Monday. June 20, Ward 1 byelection. Pelham will test a new computer program to speed up the process. At the advance poll on Wednesday, June 15, the returning officer will scan a barcode on the elector's notice card. town clerk Nancy Bozzato said. It will feed the information into a laptop containing the Municipal Voter View Program, which will contain the voters list for Ward 1. The program will remove the name of the elector from the voter's list indicating that he or she has voted.

This will not only prevent a second vote being cast on election day, it will also print out information for candidates so they know who has voted, Rozzato said

Students shown risks of summer at Day in the Park

For six years, the Pelham Community Policing committee has primed local elementary students for a safe summer holiday.

At its annual Safety Day in the Park last week, it lined up firefighters, emergency measures workers, police, search and rescue volunteers. Block Parent directors and others involved in Niagara safety programs. They explained to the couple of thousand students bused into Fenwick's Centennial Park from area schools about the hazards they may face in the summer and how to avoid them. "Falls bring us the big-should wear helmets when riding their bikes, in-line skating and skateboarding. "It only takes 30 seconds for a tragic fall to affect a family for a lifetime," he esid Emergency workers at the park had to treat an adult for heat exposure on the sunny, hot, humid day that sent temperatures into the 30s, It became a lesson in the value of shade and drinking water. Const. Cynthia Stotz with

CN Rail police at her display reminded children of the dangers around railway tracks. She explained the warning signals at crossings and how they indicated the number of tracks at the crossing

"It's usually the second train, rather than the first. that gets people," she said about four-track crossings. The second train is usually hidden by the first.

"We hope they take the message bome to their parents," she said, "It's adults who drive around crossing signals or walk their dogs along tracks." Superintendent Nancy Haywood of Search and Rescue Niagara, a volunteer group that assists in searches for lost children and missing adults, said she had a steady flow of children at her booth to play with search dogs. She and her staff explained to the children bow to avoid getting lost. If they do, the volunteers explained what to do to assist people searching for them.

Particularly popular with children were booths run by Niagara Regional Police and Pelham Fire Department.

Police demonstrated their tactical equipment, showed their cruisers and watercraft and gave their search dogs exercise. They also used a revolving car to demonstrate the force that tosses unbuckled riders out of a rolling car.

With the fire trucks, every one wanted to pull the horn and sound the siren.

"We gave out more than 400 plastic helmets," said Capt, Otto Heinrich midway through the day. Ward 2 Coun, Catherine King, community policing committee chair, said the committee was able to attract most safety-related agencies to the program. They showed displays. explained summer risks and handed out brochures and lines in 2007/08. The OMB decision required the town to undertake a "Secondary Plan" before allowing development to proceed.

All towns and cities must have "Official Plans" (OPs). Essentially, an Official Plan contains policies and guidelines and outlines where commercial, agricultural, industrial and residential developments can occur. It uses a series of maps to demonstrate Pelham adopted our current Official Plan in 1987, We started renewing and modernizing the OP in the late 1990s; but, since the Province began changing their governing policies in the mid-2000s - Greenbelt Plan, Places to Grow, Provincial Policy Statement - the town must adapt our own policies and guidelines. Staff anticipates that the town's new Official Plan will be available for public input and feedback this Fall.

Like an Official Plan covering the entire town, a secondary plan contains detailed policies and guidelines for growth and development for a specific area in this case, this East Fonthill area. Some of the goals of the East

Fonthill Secondary Plan include ensuring a well-designed. attractive, pedestrian-friendly community with a mixture of housing types; encouraging significant retail / commercial development while at the same time protecting the existing Fonthill downtown: providing a "greenlands system" that protects existing environmental features and integrates with the Steve Bauer Trail system; and developing a pedestrian / cyclist-friendly and transit-ready road network. to lag behind last year's activity level with the 72 sales recorded reflecting a 17% drop from the May 2010 year-to-date total of 87 transactions. Low borrowing costs continue to fuel the market while the rapid influx of new inventory is starting to put a damper on price growth. Since Jan. 1 of this year there have been 207 new listings offered for sale - 12.5% more than the total of 184 during the same period last year. The homes that sold in Pelham

Dorothy Rungeling praised as role model

WAYNE CAMPBELL PelhamNEWS Staff

PELHAM - Dorothy Rungeling told a love story during her 100th birthday reception last week at Pelham Public

It highlighted the Order of Canada member as a local author with four books as well as her flying career and her skills as an artist, equestrian, watercolour painter, crafter and motorcyclist

"A friend of mine read all four of my books, said she enjoyed them," Rungeling told the reception.

"But 'where's the love story?' she asked, I didn't think there was any place in them for a love story. She then told a tale from the 1930s about a young farm worker who came to the rescue of her new set of drums when she was performing in a country band.

"During the intermission, a fellow had too much to drink and nearly put his foot into a drum. A young man got him off the stage and said goodbye to him," she said.

"And then he asked me to dance." She and Charlie, an English immigrant who had worked through many jobs, became a couple. However, they did not get married for a long time because they did not have any money, she said.

Eventually, they started a business that sold used cars, building it into a garage in Welland called County Motors with a franchise for British cars such as MGs and Packards. They got married in 1943.

Rungeling said she start taking flying lessons without telling anyone.

"I just wanted to try it out," she said. When her husband found out, he bought her a new airplane for $1,500. "That was a lot of money in those days. He said he wanted to make sure I was safe!

Charlie encouraged her to follow her

"Charlie always backed me. When I wanted to go into races he said 'go ahead."

That continued through their life together. "If it had not been for him, I wouldn't be standing here today. During the reception hosted by the library and Pelham Historical Society, Rungeling received certificates from MP Dean Allison and the government of Canada, from MPP Tim Hudak and Ontario Premier Dalton McGuinty and from Niagara Regional Chair Gary Burroughs.

Welland city councillor Jim Larouche presented her with a plaque from the Niagara Central Airport commission. She flew and instructed at what was then the Welland-Port Colborne Airport in the 1950s. She promoted it through her competitive racing and a newspaper column on aviation. Mayor Dave Augustyn, who presented her with a framed certificate from the town, said Rungeling reflected the town's new strategic plan message She was vibrant, creative and caring through each of her 100 years, he said.

The mayor pointed out Rungeling did not start writing her books until 10 years ago "that's when she was 90 if you do the math." Library director Stephanie Stowe said

"no matter what age she was at, she found a passion and lived at it."

For Rungeling, passions were aviation, her children, her drawing, her historical interests and her writing. Stowe said there's a lesson for everyone. "What ever age we're at we can find a passion and do the best we can."

Marilyn Dickson, a past governor of 99s, a women's aviation club, said Dorothy was one of its earliest Canadian governors in the 1950s. "She was very good role model for women over the years." The club arranged for a stamp to mark her 99th birthday last year. The reception attracted a steady flow of people coming to congratulate Rungeling. Her books include The Life and Works of Ethelwyn Wetherald. Road to Home, It's Fun to Grow Old and The Flying

In 2003, Rungeling received the Order of Canada for her contributions to women in flying She loved living in Pelham, she said

It was once called the "Emerald Township" with orchards, hills and rich green farms. To the north and east were industrial centres of St. Catharines, Thorold and Welland to the east, a swamp with rattle snakes to the south and open fields to the west, she recalled. "Maybe we should call it that again."

Earlier this week, Rungeling passed her every-two-years driver's license

She encountered a glitch, the computer couldn't stamp out a licence for someone 100 years old. "They said they would have to mail it to me

In a year-long series of projects, they raised $5,000 for fresh water programs in Sierra Leone, a poor country in west Africa. The money will be donated through Free the Children. an organization founded by Craig Kielberger, who began it as a 12-year-old activist in 1995. He later developed the Me-to-We philosophy to encourage children to become active in improving social conditions

Conary Coyne and Jonathan Coyne formed a co-ordinating committee for the 54 students. Through the year, he said, students volunteered as snow angels to help people clear snow from driveways, sold fruit-kabobs at school events, attracted sponsors and encouraged individual donations. Each student brought in at least $150.. The highest fund-

The students said they were surprised they were able to raise $5,000. It is a lesson they will carry with them into high school. There they will volunteer to help in similar social justice programs. Moscato said this was the first time a graduating class took on such a social project. He hopes it will become an annual thing.

"This was completely driven by the kids, they guided it right through," the teacher said. "All 54 students got involved and a lot of the parents got into it."

Hudak acclaimed as candidate for Niagara West-Glanbrook

PelhamNEWS Staff

GRIMSBY - Tim Hudak has been acclaimed the Progressive Conservative candidate for Niagara West-Glanbrook.

The veteran MPP and Tory leader outlined his party's plans for the Oct. here today without the 6 provincial election at a nomination meeting at Grimsby's Casablanca Winery Inn last week.

Queen's Park for 16 years representing various rural Niagara ridings through a series of redistributions. He was elected in the newly created Niagara West Glanbrook provincial riding in 2007. In June 2009, he was elected Conservative leader. "I am proud and honoured to once again accept the nomination to be your Ontario PC candidate for Niagara West-Glanbrook," he said at the meeting "I wouldn't be standing support, honest advice and hard work of Niagara and Hamilton families,"

He was upbeat on the Hudak has served at future of the party in the provincial election. "The road to a PC majority government starts right here in Niagara West-Glanbrook. Working together, we will win, and we will bring change to Ontario. Change that gives families the relief they need, the hope they deserve, and the time together they cherish."

In his speech he touched on campaign promises outlined in the party's platform called Changebook In 2007, Hudak won the riding by more than 10,000 votes over his Liberal opponent.

In this election, he will face Liberal candidate Katie Trombetta, former mayor of West Lincoln, New Democrat Anthony Marco and Green Party candidate Meredith

The Canadian Federation of University Women Welland & District will culminate its 70th anniversary year with a spring dinner Wednesday, June 15.

The local branch of a national organization serves the communities of south Niagara including Welland, Pelham, Wainfleet and Port Colborne.

It has a steady membership of about 70, with 10 sticking with it for 40 or more years. For one it's 60 years. The anniversary dinner at Keefer Mansion House in Thorold will include 24 past presidents. "It's all about having fun while your doing something useful," said Joyce Noren, a 45-year member and former club president, explaining the appeal of the club. For the public, the CFUW is best known project is its 40-year old annual book sale, most recently held at the Niagara Regional Exhibition. It's the club's major fundraiser for a scholarship program and

Pelham Minor Baseball back in action

For PelhamNEWS

The Pelham Minor Baseball Association was finally able to play ball this past week, after the many days of rain.

The Pelham Mosquito Fonthill M & M Meat Shops Pirates started their season off on May 30 with an exhibition with Reid Murray leading the Pelham line-up with a solid line drive that earned him a single. Brock Pellow and Ryan Dykstra followed suit, and the bases were loaded when Tristan Barnhart stepped up to bat and smashed a single into right field.

The Pirates were first at bat,

Zachary Baltrusiunas and lacob Peters each hit a single in the second inning that kept the Pirates momentum going. In the field, Noah Wouthuis snagged a hit and threw the runner out at

By the third inning, the Pelham Pirates were working like a well-oiled machine. Each player went up to bat in assembly line fashion that kept the bases loaded with a runner coming in with each at bat.

Sarah Saldutto and Malyssa Cimato hit singles, and then Callan Saldutto continued the streak with a double.

The Pelham Bantam M&M Meat Shops team played in Thorold on Thursday, and broke the game open in the last inning to win 9-2. Brian Cunningham provided three innings of shutout pitching, and Daniel Lewis and Matt Iones limited Thorold to one run each in their two innings pitched.

Ryan Guzowski, Matt Jones and Rvan Zwierschke all hit doubles, and Brian Cunningham scored two runs, while Blake Paylove had three hits in the game. Garrett Giganti stole his way home from first base to seal the victory

The TimBits T-Ball teams were on the field at North Pelham Park this past week to practise their skills, and will start their season of games on June 6 and 7. The PMBA has 11 baseball teams and four T-Ball teams on the Pelham fields this year. so please come out to the parks and enjoy a night of baseball. Game schedules are posted at www.pmba.ca, and games are played at Marlene Stewart Streit Park, Harold Black Park, and North Pelham Park

Crossley sister act steals show at OFSAA

BERND FRANKE Tribune Staff

PELHAM - A sister act representing E.L. Crosslev was tough to beat at the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations Track and Field Championships. Megan Rempel and older sister

Karley combined return home from Sudbury with half of the six medals won by south Niagara high school students at the three-day event that wrapped up Saturday at Laurentian University Megan Rempel paced the field in the midget girls 1,500-metre final, outracing her closest competitor by nearly 2 1/2 seconds for the gold. the gold by nearly 2 1/2 seconds. Centennial's Zoe Abbott-Tate placed 11th in the same event Her second medal also was won in a head-to-head race against Abbott-Tate. Megan Rempel's 2:16.52 was fast enough for the bronze in the midget girls 800, while Abbott-Tate crossed the finish line in seventh place in a time of 2:24.37.

Like her sister, Karley Rempel advanced to the finals in two events at the provincial championships. She settled for silver in the senior girls 300, losing the gold by less than 5/100ths of a second, and finished seventh in the senior girls 1,500 Crossley's other medal - and south Niagara's only other gold at this year's championship - was won by Emma Suiciak, who won the senior girls high jump, 1.76 metres to 1.74. She also competed in the 100-metre hurdles but failed to advance for the final field of eight finishing ninth in qualifying by less than 3/10ths of a second.

Notre Dame's Sarah Moss, a double winner last year when OFSAA was held at the University of Western Ontario in London, Ont., repeated the feat by taking silver in both the senior girls discus and senior girls shotput.
